In this studio you will be using your design knowledge to design an event. The event is part of an Environmental Living Festival that is taking place in Avoca, a small country town, on Saturday the 10th and Sunday the 11th October. This event will also involve making and building and working with gardens. The event will constitute the final presentation. The studio is orientated around an approach to design that actively works with people; including the people within the studio, project team work and with the community of Avoca. It will ask you to design ways in which to seek out people to work with, to draw on expertise and engage them in your event. The studio class time will occur in Avoca where the projects will be built in situ. You need to be ready to get your hands dirty. There are four intensive workshops in Avoca. There will also be some class time in Melbourne on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons. The fee for transport, food and some materials is $250.

Forage

Studio lecturer: Fiona Harrison