Study on The modes of Construction and Development

Of University Science Parks in China

By Zhujun Zhang, Zemin Niu and Jun Li

Abstract

The paper discusses the roles of university science parks in China during the economic transfer time on the investigation of 45 university science parks. The construction and development of university science parks affects the industrialization and commercialization of Hi-tech research findings and the development of regional economy. This paper also studies successful experiences of university science parks compared with abroad university science parks, and presents some strategies to solve the problems in the construction and development of university science parks in China.

Key words
University science park  construction and development modes